MR. GARRETT'S BOMBSHELL.

WAS THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO TELEGRAPH SOLD BY CROOKED MEANS?

Vice-President Spencer Says the Western Union Will Take Charge of the Lines at 19 O'clock To-night—Estrangement Between Mr. Garrett and Some of His Close Friends—The Hambletons' Statement.

The pens in which the animals are confined are separated by a fence, in the middle of which is a gate. About 6.30 o'clock Keeper Manly was coming down the walk with Night Watchman Feeny, when he heard a shrill cry, as if from an animal in pain. He rushed to the deer park, and looking over the fence, saw the mule deer victously prodding the fallow buck with its short, sharp horns. With the exception of Head Keeper Byrne, who appeared in response to a call from Manly, there was no one else about the garden. The three men leaped over the wooden barrier and made for the animals whose horns were interlocked in their desperate attempt to kill each other. Manly and Feeny were armed with stout poles, with which they belabored the beasts. Head Keeper Byrne had nothing but an umbrella. This he opened and shook at the animals. They manifested their fear by ripping it into shreds, and making a savage omisinght on the intrepidation. The mon scattered, but quickly renewed the states, and in ress than twenty minutes had the states, and in ress than twenty minutes had the states and in the land when was cut considerably around the head and neck, but the wounds are not dangerous.

Woos of the Messenger Boy.
[From the Philadelphia Bulletin.]
R is usual to compare the speed of the per boy to that of the crab, and, though one-half the comments are made in jest, there is much room for them. It is hard to get good messenger boys and still harder to keep them. All they get is $5 per week and their first week's pay is deducted to keep pay for their uniforms and $1 each week thereafter is deducted until each hoy's assessment reaches the amount of $10. Two suits each year they are compelled to buy, and this makes two weeks of the year in which they get no money at all and fourteen weeks in which they work for $2. When the boys find this out they leave the service at the first opportunity. Bright boys who are good workers soon attract notice from business men, who find room for them, and so the force is constantly being robbed of its best boys, leaving only those who really can't do anything but deliver telegrams and packages, and can't even do that well.

About the Tollers.

The wages of the varnishers and polishers in the Reinway plano manufactory have had their wages acreased $1 per man a week. chinists' Progressive Union No. 1 is to call a meeting of all machinery workers, for the ose of organizing a national body. Brakemen, assistant brakemen and paper-wet-ers are wanted to attend a meeting of Web Press-sen's Union to-night at No. 98 Forsyth street.

Notices have been posted around Park row and riuting-House Square warning press-feeders to sep away from Gildersleeve's printing office be-nue of a strike.

R. Leitsman, a member of the Machinists' Union, as suggested that all the labor organizations form themselves into baseball clubs and carry bals when they attend outdoor meetings. It is said that 7,000 men, women and children re employed in the book-binding trade in this sky, and that only 900 are organized. An open mon of this class of workers is being organized.

Not the First Time.

Oh, Ayoub Khan I Oh, Ayoub Khan I
Fou meet mysterious, awful man;
Low in the desert now you lie,
The hatred dulled within your eye,
The life-blood ebbing from your breast,
Your busy hands at last at rest,
Oh, Ayoub Khan I Oh, Ayoub Khan I
Thay've killed you and our hearts are sore;
But, Ayoub Khan,
Mysterious man,
Thay've killed you forty times before.

"Do you think sor" responded the hostess, languidly. "Yes, I think they are rather artistic. I believe there are about a dozen of them. I really never counted."
At this juncture madam's hopeful son rushed into the room and, with the budyancy and frankness of childhood, exclaimed: "Hay, there's eleven lamps in this room. Ma and me counted 'eva this mornin'."

Capt. D. Smith Harris, of this city, is probably the oldest surviving settler in the Northwest, having been a resident of the Galena lead mines for PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15 .- There is an immense demand for hard coal throughout the Eastern States, and coal shippers at this a period of sixty-four gears continuously. He is also the pioneer steamboat captain of the Upper port hold large numbers of orders which they are unable to fill owing to the scarcity of coal sippi, and was the first person to navigate caused by the strike in the Lehigh regions the Wisconsin River, Lake St. Croix and the

The Schuylkill regions are unable to furnish enough coal to meet the demands. This scarcity of coal has greatly interfered with the coastwise trade of the port, and many of the old traders are going to Norioik, Locust Point and other Southern ports in hopes of obtaining better despatch. Morpheus woos his eyelids down in slumber, the imp forgets to put a quictus on his vocal organs, and so they rattle away at the unreasonable midnight hour. In his sleep-talking our young friend is addicted to swearing, and on such occasions he will dre a volley of saths into the atmosphere so black and horrible that the most abandoned pirate's parrot that ever sailed the Southern seas would confess itself outdone. Now this young man has narrowly escaped arrest for disturbing the peace several times, when his nocturnal bursts of blasphemy have scandalized and aroused the two floors of a certain Woodland hotel, and still the young man would insist that he was not guilty of the offense. He insisted that he had no recollection, even in dream, of polluting his mouth with swear words. Rashly and imprudently this young man, a short time since, consummated a case of matrimony with one of Yolo's fairest daughters. At the altar the young bride stood, joyously trusful, and in the roscate skies of the bright morning of the new life before her her girlish fancy saw the sweet promise of her future happiness. And how her heart throbbed with wifely pride, still claspling his hand, as she thought how a wfully nice and good her own darling would always be. But hers are not the first fond hopes that have been rudely dashed down. Deep sorrow hides in her heart where gladness should have its habitation. But why pursue this harrowing story at great length? It would be almost indelicate to put in print what may be readily surmised. The conclusions cannot be escaped. The hopeless, helpless, even pitiful and downcast expression upon the young husband's face, growing deeper day by day, tells the story. And it is even so. The evil spirit that employed his unconscious bachelor jaw to grind out a nightly grist of shocking profanity, seems not to have any respect for the plous, tender, loving heart of this newly initiated wife. Hats are of most varied shapes, but always with reference to the tollette they accompany. For mornings young ladies wear a round hat of feit, very similar to the hat worn on horseback in the country, of almost masculine simplicity. Ladies of mature age and quiet tastes wear a velvet capote, or one of felt faced with a velvet of some dark color, black most generally. For afternoon the young lady will put on one of the innumerable forms of the capote, or perhaps a turban of black Chantilly lace. Capotes at less peaked and a little less high than last wind a; the trimming is invariably high. Many hats like the majority of tollets, are composed of two different materials—a crown, for example, of gold-lace or colored passementerie, with a brim of velvet or plush; or else the reverse is the case, and the crown is of WARRING RENNEDT, Wholesale Diff Goods, Astronto, Ont.
